Sun in 0° Capricorn

Capricorn is represented by an ancient Babylonian creature, the sea-goat. One half of the creature is the mountain goat, who lives on the edge of steep rocks, implausibly hopping from one steep ledge to another. This symbolizes the path to mastery, as what appears effortless has been learned with care. This creature is a climber, symbolizing one's personal pursuit of success. The fish tail symbolizes one's connection to the mystic.

often to achieve one's own goals and willing to work one's own destiny.

When one depends on others, it can be comfortable for a period of time, but at times one's own authenticity can be compromised. One may not fully know what they are capable of, and may not give themselves the opportunity to show. For this reason, Capricorn often feels a deeper feeling of empowerment. When one gives their heart into their passions, following their own personal bliss, it can be deeply rewarding, what one accomplishes can be much more powerful than going through the motions, waiting for or depending on another.

Rather than shunning responsibility, Capricorn wishes to lighten its own load, is looking at things for the positive. One sees the big picture, the peak of the mountain rather than the small challenges. One does not shy from the true and real way, seeking to be practical in its approach, being willing to gain from the best knowledge and other's experiences. One graduates to stability, a grounded approach, and has a willingness to practice discipline. Discipline is an every day affirmation of what one is really reaching for.

Capricorn does not naturally graduate toward hard work, but one may get lost in a cycle of hard work. One can get lost in believing the destination justifies the means, but this is never so. The journey there is where the fun is. As one deepens in their self awareness, they grow to see that no step along the way has to be hard as long as one is orienting themselves toward the positive, and willing to have fun.

Capricorn's traits are balanced by the opposite sign, Cancer. Cancer seeks to grow more in touch with one's own emotions. Emotions are the our guidance system: when one is happy, when one is following their bliss, they are listening to messages from their spirit. Cancer's approach seeks to cultivate the connection to one's inner spirit, valuing sensitive places where one can feel free to move with their inner rhythms, valuing an environment of caring and heart connection.

Dramatic temperament
Nourished by being center stage
Playful expression

Square symbolism

Tension
Difficulty balancing energies
Stimulating, challenging, motivating

Ascendant in Taurus symbolism

An easy-going, calm, and steady demeanor
A natural, unaffected beauty, likely to not be very made-up
Unwavering in their preferences, with a strong and developed taste

Moon Square Ascendant

You come off as someone who is highly receptive to people and your environment, attuned to a soft sense, as if you were psychic. People tend to feel they can trust you, and they feel understood by you easily. Their receptiveness to you is because of your supportive and warm-hearted demeanor. People immediately feel like you could be family.

However, as the Ascendant only reflects what is seen on the surface, your private thoughts can have you being more of a detached observer, especially regarding

Chart patterns are a collection of aspects that are grouped together to reveal a larger geometric pattern within the chart.

T-Square symbolism

- Prompts action
- High degree of motivation to succeed in this area
- Unwillingness to accept anything less than what is wanted
- Offers frustration, as well as opportunity to excel in an unprecedented way

T-Square between Pluto in 29° Scorpio, Mars in 1° Virgo, Ascendant in 26° Taurus, Moon in 25° Leo, and Jupiter in 2° Sagittarius

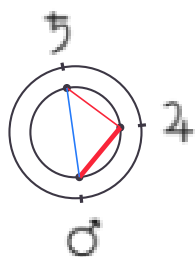

The key thing about this T-Square is that the planets primarily fall in the Fixed signs (Taurus, Scorpio, Leo, Aquarius). The chart is dominant in the characteristics of Fixed signs which means one can be quite focused and single-minded in their pursuits. They deeply value feeling intimidate them. But they are not intimidated in taking short-cuts that violates their integrity.

In fact, one with this placement can be quite stubborn, inflexible and determined about what they feel to be true. They can be downright obstinate, unwilling to change their course despite other's attempts to do so. Yet the gift of this placement is learning the power of stubbornness in the face of numerous obstacles. Their fixed, calm and persistent nature is ultimately victorious.

T-Square between Saturn in 7° Pisces, Jupiter in 2° Sagittarius, and Mars in 1° Virgo

The key thing about the T Square is that the planets primarily fall in the Mutable signs (Virgo, Gemini, Pisces, Sagittarius). The chart is dominated by the characteristics of Mutable signs which means one enjoys being adaptable, morphing themselves to what is required in any situation. In fact, the individual needs to be being flexible and seeks out situations in which their malleability is tested. Standing one's ground is of little importance to such a person, who enjoys discovering how to be successful and versatile in any situation.

Such an individual actively seeks out learning from people from all walks of life, seeking to be a Jack of all trades in whatever they do. On the other hand, they can react to situations by conforming out of fear, seeking to be like a chameleon, invisible and unnoticed if they are uncomfortable. Their desire to please can get them in trouble, as they can come across inconsistent or even deceitful. The beauty of this placement is in learning how to stretch oneself and be adaptable, one finds they are powerful beyond measure.
